The description below summarizes the type of data we may process in connection with this website and the purpose of the processing of this data:

2.4 With whom do we share your data?

For the aforementioned processing purposes, we may share your data with our service providers (such as IT service providers, for example). FORS may also be required to disclose your data in order to comply with its legal obligations, following a request from a judicial or administrative authority, or in the context of legal proceedings. Under no circumstances will your data be sold to third parties, in particular for marketing or promotional purposes.

2.6 How do we protect your data?

We do our utmost to ensure the security of your data and to prevent any unauthorized access, use, loss, modification, or disclosure. We also make every effort to ensure that any third parties to whom your data may be communicated (as described above) treat it in a secure manner to ensure its confidentiality and integrity. Our security measures are continuously improved in line with technological developments.

Despite our best efforts, it is not possible to fully guarantee the security of information exchanged over the Internet. FORS assumes no responsibility for the data you transmit.

3. How do we use cookies?

This website uses cookies. Cookies are individual codes (for example a serial number) that our server or a server of our service providers transmits to your system when you connect to our website, and that your system accepts and stores until the set expiration time. Your system transmits these codes to our server or the third-party server with each additional access. That way, your digital footprint is recognized even if your identity is unknown. As the cookies are stored on your system, you as the user have complete control over how cookies are used. By changing the settings in your web browser, you can deactivate or restrict the transmission of cookies to external websites. You can also delete all saved cookies on your system at any time. Restrictions on cookie usage can be managed automatically by your browser. If you disable cookies for our website, you may no longer be able to use the site's full range of functions.

We distinguish the following categories of cookies:

First Party Cookies

- Essential cookies: Some cookies are necessary for the functioning of the website or for certain features. For example, they ensure that you can move between pages without losing information that was entered in a form. These cookies exist temporarily only ("session cookies"). If you block them, the website may not work properly.
- Non-essential cookies and pixel tracking: Non-essential cookies allow us to optimize our website and improve the user experience. Pixel tracking is used to check the opening rate of our newsletters.
  - Performance cookies: In order to optimize our website and to better adapt them to the needs of the users, we use performance cookies to record and analyze the use of our website. The web server only records usage data which reveal statistical trends which we use to improve our offer (log files). We use Matomo for this purpose which also uses cookies. The data generated by cookies concerning your use of the site is transmitted to and stored on servers located at the University of Lausanne. All data is anonymized and will be kept on Matomo for 24 months. This information is used to evaluate your use of the site, to compile reports on site activity for the site editor and Internet use.
  - Preference cookies: Preference cookies are necessary for the server to store options or information (which you have entered) beyond a session (i.e., a visit to the website) if you use this function. This site only uses preference cookies for language settings.
  - Pixel tracking: We use tracking pixels in our newsletters to analyze the open rate.

Third-party cookies

We do not use any third-party cookies. We may integrate third-party links on our website, in particular from social media providers such as X (formerly Twitter), Facebook, and Issuu.

These links are deactivated by default, i.e., there is no embedded external code and no third-party information sharing by default. As soon as you activate the links by clicking on them, these providers can determine that you are using our website. If you have an account with that social media provider, it can assign this information to you and thereby track your use of online offers. These social media providers process this data as separate controllers. Details can be found on the websites of the third-party providers. FORS itself has no influence on how the data is processed by these providers.

This website uses maps provided by amCharts. When you visit our site, maps from amCharts are embedded to enhance your experience. In accordance with amCharts' privacy practices, a third-party analytical service collects data such as your IP address and information about your device setup (including your browser and operating system version) for analytical purposes. For more detailed information on what is collected and how it is used, please review the amCharts privacy policy at amCharts Privacy Policy.
